Summary

I am a cryptocurrency--particularly privacy-focused Monero--enthusiast. As a prominent Monero Community member since 2018, I translate Monero documents and organize communities. My primary focus is open-source software, and I have been studying and working with Linux operating systems since 2016.

Having studied and finished my Software Engineering foundations at Holberton School Colombia, I am working to integrate cryptocurrencies like Monero (XMR) with the world. Because cryptocurrency is new, this is both a technical and creative endeavor. I see and love technology as a bridge for human integration.

I know the C, Python, and JavaScript programming languages. I have done web development with HTML and CSS, and have experience in database management using MySQL.
